THE REVOLUTIONARY GOVERNMENT OF ZANZIBAR

PRESIDENT’S OFFICE AND CHAIRMAN OF THE REVOLUTIONARY COUNCIL

THE DIASPORA POLICY OF ZANZIBAR

2017
FORWARD

The Diaspora Policy of Zanzibar seeks to provide a basis for maximizing the value of Diaspora contributions to Zanzibar's socio-economic development, while at the same time addressing issues and concerns of the Diaspora by putting up good procedures that will build trust with a purpose of engaging people in Diaspora and strengthen cooperation with their country of origin.

The policy development process was led by the President's Office and Chairman of the Revolutionary Council (POCRC). The POCRC undertook consultations with the Diaspora and received comments which were useful inputs for the development of the Policy. It continued with a review of existing official and unofficial documents as well as published and unpublished studies on the subject. This was later complemented by interviews and focus group discussions with various individuals in the government, private sectors, civil society organizations, Diaspora returnees and members of the Diaspora communities.

Diaspora issues are considered as rich, resourceful and beneficial opportunity for the country development, therefore during the formulation of this policy they have been formally integrated in the Zanzibar development strategies. This Policy hence sets out Mission, Vision, objectives and a clear institutional framework which will enable the Diaspora to effectively contribute to the development of their country. The Government is committed to make the Diaspora Policy of Zanzibar a success and will support its implementation.

In realizing the successful implementation of the Diaspora Policy of Zanzibar, the creation of an enabling environment as well as establishment of the appropriate legal framework for the Diaspora administration is crucial. In view of this, the government will make sure that the department responsible for matters of Diaspora works diligently and in close collaboration with other stakeholders throughout the policy implementation process. Timelines for the attainments of targets need to be clearly defined and proper monitoring and evaluation infrastructure be well setup.

Apart from the introduction, the general layout of this Policy comprises five chapters namely: Chapter One which presents the history and situation of Diaspora in Zanzibar, Chapter Two defines the Zanzibar Diaspora, states the policy Vision and Mission as well as Policy Principles and Regulations; whereas Chapter Three focuses on the Needs and Objectives of the Policy. Chapter Four displays Policy statement and Strategies while eventually, Chapter Five specifies the institutional roles and functions and also suggests monitoring and evaluation procedures.

We are grateful to all the stakeholders, institutions and persons who contributed to the development of this Diaspora Policy of Zanzibar. We hope that the actions and outcomes of this Policy will not only maximize the value of the Diaspora’s contributions to Zanzibar’s national development but also influence the growth and prosperity of the Diaspora.

HON. ISSA HAJI USSI GAVU,
MINISTER OF STATE, PRESIDENT'S OFFICE AND CHAIRMAN OF REVOLUTIONARY COUNCIL,

CHAPTER ONE

HISTORY AND SITUATION OF DIASPORA IN ZANZIBAR

1. Introduction
Zanzibar is an Island State within the Indian Ocean in Eastern Africa of which its inhabitants originate from all corners of the world. It is natural for Island people to migrate to different parts of the world, thus travelling and migration becoming part of their culture. A considerable number of Zanzibar people have migrated to various parts of Mainland Tanzania and to other foreign countries where they join the locals in socio-economic development efforts. Similarly, a number of Zanzibaris in Diaspora maintain relations with their country of origin by supporting their communities in socio-economic development initiatives.

The Revolutionary Government of Zanzibar pursues various enabling measures for Zanzibaris in Diaspora to contribute to the Isles development. During the 1980, His Excellency Mzee Ali Hassan Mwinyi, the then President of Zanzibar and Chairman of the Revolutionary Council, (Third phase Government) called upon all Zanzibaris in Diaspora to invest in the economic recovery efforts of Zanzibar.

Likewise, during the 1990’s, His Excellency Dr. Salmin Amour Juma, the former President of Zanzibar who served in the Fifth phase, called upon Zanzibar Diaspora to invest in residential buildings in Zanzibar. The national recognition of the Diaspora’s assistance to their country made the subject of Tanzanians Diaspora an integral part of the CCM 2010 – 2015 Election Manifesto.
This is evident in section 199(i) of the Manifesto that emphasizes the need to recognize the Tanzanian community in Diaspora and the necessity of laying down procedures for involving them in the development of their home country.

In its bid to implement the CCM – manifesto, soon after the October, 2010 General Elections, the Revolutionary Government of Zanzibar initiated a process of engaging the Zanzibar Diaspora in Isles development efforts. His Excellency Dr. Ali Mohamed Shein, the President of Zanzibar and Chairman of the Revolutionary Council of the Seventh Phase Government, created the Department for International Cooperation, and Coordination of Zanzibaris in Diaspora to be responsible for proper coordination of Zanzibaris in Diaspora.

Since its founding, the Department has worked towards building a conducive working environment with the Diaspora, including motivating them to participate in the country’s Social and Economic Development. Apart from fulfilling the above roles, the Department has also undertook working trips to Oman, United Arab Emirates (U.A.E) Brazil, India, Denmark and Ethiopia for the purpose of engaging the Diaspora in building their country. The trips, on the other hand, were meant to be study tours aiming at learning best practices of the host countries on issues relating to Diaspora.

On the same vein, the Zanzibar long term Development Vision, (Zanzibar Vision 2020) which focuses on the eradication of absolute poverty and forging sustainable development, acknowledges the place of Diaspora in Zanzibar development. Similarly, the Zanzibar Strategy for Growth and Reduction of Poverty (2015 – 2020) in its implementation strategies has recognized the importance of people in Diaspora hence proposing appropriate involvement procedures to be adopted.
In general, the Development Plans of Zanzibar fully acknowledge philanthropic contributions of people in Diaspora as capital in socio-economic development interventions. The plans also lay particular emphasis on urging the Diaspora to participate in promoting investment in tourism and other development activities. The banks in Zanzibar are also advised to have simplified banking procedures that will enable the people in diaspora to conveniently use the service they offer such as opening of bank accounts.

1.2 History, People and Economy of Zanzibar
Zanzibar covers an area of 2654 square kilometres, of which Unguja has 1,666 square kilometres and Pemba has 988 square kilometres. Zanzibar has been a trade hub for Middle East countries, India, and other African countries. Since the 14th century, Zanzibar had its own central rule organized under Mwinyi Mkuu. The Portuguese touch-based with Zanzibar and ruled the Island for almost two centuries, before the Sultan of Oman occupied and ruled the Islands from 1698 to 1964. The liberation of Zanzibar was attained on 12th January 1964, after a popular people’s Revolution. On 26 April, 1964 Zanzibar united with Tanganyika (which attained its independence on 9 December, 1961), to form the United Republic of Tanzania.

Subsequent to the Union, the Authority of the Government of Tanganyika was merged within the Government of the United Republic of Tanzania, while the Revolutionary Government of Zanzibar retained the authority on non-union matters. Zanzibar operates under its three pillars of democracy: the House of Representatives, Executive and Judiciary. However, the Court of Appeal remains a Union matter.

According to the 2012 Tanzania Census, Zanzibar has a total population of 1,303,569 with a 2.8% growth rate. About 51.6% of Zanzibaris are female while 48.4% are males. The census revealed that 46.3% of its population lives in rural areas while the remaining are in urban areas. The Youth, between 15 to 35 years, constitute 36.2 percent of the total population of Zanzibar.

Zanzibar National Statistics (2016) shows that the Gross Domestic Product at current prices amounted to Tshs. 2628 billion. Majority of the people of Zanzibar are subsistence farmers. Zanzibar’s per capital income stands at 1,806,000/. The major economic activities of Zanzibar include tourism, agriculture, transportation, communication, construction, finance and trade.

It is the strategy of the Government to ensure that equilibrium exists between its development plans, investment inflows with economic growth and social development. The economic reform undertaken since the 1980’s, has spearheaded significant achievements in promoting both local and foreign private Investments in tourism, transport and communication sectors. Zanzibar maintains a stable economic growth rate that stood at 6.6 percent in 2015.

1.3 Global Profile of Diaspora
The United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs (UNDESA) has declared that during the last 50 years, the number of people in diaspora has risen from 75 Million in the 1960’s to 232 Million in 2013 representing 3 percent of the total world population.

The 2011 World Bank Report on Diaspora for development in Africa, shows that a total of 30.6 Million African people live outside their native countries. The Diaspora financial remittances to their countries of origin are estimated to reach US$ 40 billion in 2010. That amount is higher than the aggregate of official development assistance and foreign direct investment that has been received by those countries during the same year.

Likewise, according to a 2015 United Nation official report on Diaspora for Development in Africa, the amount of remittances to developing countries contributed by 230 million people in Diaspora was expected to reach US$ 500 billion. This high rate of financial remittances has inspired Governments of different countries and International Development Institutions to accord a special importance and focus on the issues of migration and development in their social and economic development strategies.

1.4 The Current Profile of Zanzibar Diaspora

There is no official or reliable statistics showing the number of Zanzibaris or Tanzanians living outside their home country in terms of number, domicile, age, qualifications, education and levels of income.

The 2015 Migration Report of the United Republic of Tanzania gives an estimate of 421,456 Tanzanians who are living outside the country. Likewise, statistics from the Office of the Zanzibar Chief Government Statistician, in its publication “Zanzibar in figures” (2015) gives a record of 1.2 percent of Tanzanians living in foreign countries. The report does not, however, provide the actual numbers of Zanzibaris living abroad.

Similarly, there exists also a challenge of knowing the exact amount of financial remittances from Diaspora to Tanzania and Zanzibar in particular. It was noted in the 2013 World Bank report on Diaspora for Development in Africa that it is difficult to accurately verify the actual amount of financial remittance to sub-Saharan African countries. The Bank of Tanzania estimates an average of US$ 1.0 million as remittances to Zanzibar from Diaspora in 2015.

Despite official channels provided by commercial banks in Tanzania and Zanzibar in collaboration with either Western Union or money gram International, remittances through unofficial channels are predominant. This practice has however led to unavailability of reliable statistics of Diaspora remittances to Zanzibar.

There is a notable recognition that Zanzibar has a large reservoir of highly qualified academicians and specialists in various disciplines working in key institutions in Europe, United States of America, Canada and the Middle East. The technical expertise of people in Diaspora and the process of transfer of technology acquired from foreign countries to their home countries could make significant benefits to both Diaspora recipient countries and their countries of origin.

For an example in 2013, Kiswahili experts from Zanzibar who are working in various foreign Universities collaborated with the State University of Zanzibar (SUZA) to prepare Kiswahili curriculum for PHD and Post graduate level studies. Likewise, those experts have been contributing a lot in Kiswahili teaching, as they have been coming to Zanzibar every year to teach Kiswahili. In 2015, the University of Copenhagen collaborated with people of Zanzibar origin who live in Denmark in organizing a trip to Zanzibar for a number of Denmark teachers to teach in various schools, such as Kisiwandui, Haile Selassie, Benbella and Nungwi. Similarly, in health sector, Tanzanians in America were able to organize a trip for health practitioners from the “African Women Cancer Awareness Association. The practitioners successfully managed to provide training on dental care and diagnosis of maternal cancer at the Zanzibar School of Health – Mombasa.
Diaspora philanthropy generally refers to private donations of Diaspora populations to a wide range of activities in their countries of origin. The amount of contributions to philanthropic activities in Zanzibar is not clearly known. However, it is specified in the International Labour Organization 2010 Report on Social Protection and Review of Budget on Social-related activities that Diaspora support for religious-related activities was equivalent to 0.4 percent of Zanzibar G.D.P. Some of the contributions made by the Diaspora include the supply of medical equipment to Kivunge and Makunduchi district hospitals and construction of Unguja Ukuu School by the Zanzibar Diaspora in Canada.

In the same spirit, The Milele Foundation, a Diaspora philanthropy institution has signed an MOU with some Government Institutions for construction of Welezo Hospital in Unguja, and construction of water tank at Makunduchi. In the year 2015, Zanzibar Diaspora living in Seattle in the United State of America managed to collect 562 School chairs which 500 desks which were later transported by the RGOZ to Zanzibar. The chairs and desks were distributed to various secondary schools including Lumumba, Tumekuja and Mwanakwerekwe “C” in Unguja and Fidel Castro and Madungu secondary schools in Pemba.

About 80 percent of foreign exchange earnings in Zanzibar come from tourism related activities. The Diaspora community has the potential of opening up new tourism markets for Zanzibar. They are better placed to appreciate tourism opportunities of Zanzibar than other foreign agents.
